

YES

I have to give “the best deal” I have ever seen for a watch under $1000 to a non-mechanical watch. The reason I call it a non-mechanical watch is because it’s better than a quartz watch. Quartz watches have received a bad name over the past 20 years but they are not all bad as we have seen in the under $1000-section. (Quartz is just another way to regulate time and as technology progresses so does timekeeping or, at least, the way we tell time.)

Continued

WOW Under $1,000

Under $1000.

The watch that gets the highest grade in this category is the “YES” watch.

YES watch sent me the latest example of their evolution.

The watch is made of titanium with all the bells and whistles of the earlier YES watches and is the same as the titanium watch with the black satin-finish but this time they went to the ends of the earth to find someone who can really make a case shine. YES watch has made a titanium watch that is much thinner than the huge original watch and lighter in weight.

This watch is finished to a shiny silver like I have never seen. Some care and love was put into this watch.

My first impression of any watch is the case and dial. If I am disappointed by the case there is really nothing that will impress me about the watch. Upon first glance of this watch, my eyes opened up. I have never seen titanium finished to such a silvery white on any watch before. I have seen some good ones and I really never liked them. I could always tell it was a polished titanium. Not that that is a bad thing but it was just never “right.” There was always something that bothered me about how the finish was done or the color, I’m not sure exactly what it is but now that I have seen this latest YES watch I now have a standard of how polished titanium should look.

And the watch is great, too.

The functions are fantastic. Every two time-zone traveler should have one of these. Not only is it easy to read, but it looks good, too, and the ladies will always ask you what kind of watch it is.

An old friend of mine once said, and this was the quote in the very first issue we published: “You can’t have a good time without a good watch.”

This quote applies to YES watch.

The Kundalini is a fine example of what YES produces. For about $800 you get a beautiful titanium (mirror-polished) watch with anti-glare sapphire crystal, symbol bezel and locking clasp; screw back and double o-rings. The case size is 48 x 15 mm case and it comes in a wooden heirloom box.

www.yeswatch.com

— Urich

